

First Nations People

More than just advice

To create sustainable and independent communities, it is essential to develop a strong First Nations economy that promotes empowerment, prosperity, success, and intergenerational wealth creation.

More First Nations groups are seeking commercial solutions to navigate challenges and achieve their goals. We help to improve First Nations financial literacy and with their informed participation, develop internal controls, systems and procedures in their corporations.

We have a wealth of knowledge and experience in collaborating with First Nations parties to effectively manage, govern, and deliver commercial strategies for their clients and communities.

At Nexia Edwards Marshall, we provide respectful, sensitive, inclusive, and collaborative services to support First Nations people and their groups in their operations.

Ensuring you're always ready for what's next

We provide assistance to First Nations communities and individuals who require guidance, strategy development, and support in achieving their commercial and community goals, whether it be through policies, programs, projects, organisations, or businesses.

We assist our clients to expand their workforce and supply chains to include more First Nations people and businesses. Through our services at Nexia Edwards Marshall, we help to increase economic participation, employment opportunities, and wealth creation by promoting First Nations workforce engagement, procurement, and supply chain diversity.

Our approach helps businesses to understand and navigate the Indigenous Procurement Policy's key components and principles, ensuring effective sourcing of First Nations suppliers.
